ABOUT ME

A motivated and goal-oriented Computer Science graduating student with a solid background in full-stack web development. I am a committed problem-solver who is enthusiastic about creating dynamic and responsive web applications from scratch. Having played the lead programmer for academic group projects, I have experience bringing concepts from initial ideation to actualization. I am a fast and eager learner, always willing to learn new technologies and industry standards. I am looking for a job where I will be able to utilize my frontend and backend skills to design effective web solutions as a member of a cohesive and creative team.
